

In its first reveal video to FIFA Gamer, the game's developers, EA Sports, demonstrated how this data is used to power the game's AI. "With a partner in Motion Systems™, EA Sports has developed the technology that drives the movement of the characters in FIFA 22," the game's producer Julian Graff said in a statement. "Its use at the core of the engine architecture, along with the additional information on players gathered through player attributes, offers great performance gains." EA Sports also added that the tracking data can also be used to power on-field animation, ball physics and player animations in the game. The company has also said that this technology will be rolling out to FIFA titles in the future.Q: How to find a single part and replace it with different strings? What's new in Fifa 22:

- Realism. World-class stats and player intelligence bring you closer to the game. What's your best move on the dribble when your opponent is just waiting for you? Fully simulate that time-sensitive decision with New Challenges, a brand-new multi-turn gameplay feature developed from our interaction with players and coaches around the globe.
- Career Mode. FIFA 22 introduces three brand-new career goals and six new career challenges that allow fans to create a unique career for their players, to influence the direction of the player's life after they retire, and to see how their favourite player's career can be influenced by their own tactics, methods and management.

FIFA 21 introduced many new things and fixes from the previous year's version (version 19), such as adding better AI, improved AI passing accuracy, more accurate goal kicks, and reforming the weather conditions. However, this year's announcement didn't offer any new gameplay modes, particularly in terms of the various modes that were present in the previous release, such as Team of the Year, Replay editors, and online service improvements. So what features is the new release adding?

Loaded up

Talking about features, the game contains many:

- FIFA 22 introduces a rebuilt Create-a-Club feature. The Create-a-Club feature allows players to create their own team, design their kits, create player faces and bodies, and create low, medium, and high-end clubs that players can use in Career mode.
