wide and remote Australian Outback, a nation was born. New lives were created, new identities formed and new empires were created. The littlest country of them all was named Ectolibrium. The people thrived on a rocky, but fertile landscape and had witnessed a number of upheavals since their founding. A century ago, they built a giant wall, to keep the invading forces of Ectolibrium at bay, creating a frontier style city within it called the Capital of Serenity. What's new:

- CD - 2011 - $14.98. This is one of my all time favorite CDs of songs. Hear for yourself, it's music that you won't hear everyday on the radio. A 20 track CD from the late 80's, early 90's that mostly chronicle the Boston Braves and the 1980's. Don't worry, they will not be exposed to ri-go-clicure. THE VERY NEXT DAY I ENJOYED THE FOLLOWING BRIEF PLAYBULL: - Jim Parker looks just like a real/original Disney logo character. Not being fair about this I stand by my argument that he looks more like a character than a professional athlete. Almost like he was born to do this. - The thing that always made me love Jim Neil the most (after Jim Parker) was that he seemed as an undrafted college product to have no goal other than to make it as a baseball player. He didn't have a business degree and was not sure if he wanted to be a financial manager or an umpire or a coach. He wanted to become a baseball player and this was something both he and Terry Bradshaw did without someone in their lives trying to tell them how to become more than a ballplayer. There is something to be said for people who lack ambition. They are able to be free of hang ups and false ideas about how things should be done. - 2009 Jim Neils and Jim Carreras were traded back and forth in the middle of the game by Kirk Gibson, only to have the Braves lose in extra innings. - It's the end of the game. And the Braves are tied with the Indians when Dan Driessen hits a game-tying 3rd inning homer. As I've said, he was a 6th round pick in 1986 (and a career.256/.333/.366 hitter in the majors) who hit 49 career homers over six seasons in the majors and hit over.300 in five of his six full seasons in the majors. He had career minor league averages of.273/.329/.411 with 15 homers while attending a premium school that did not teach soundhitting fundamentals, like taking your time at the plate, taking a healthy stance and seeing pitches, preferably the better pitches. (If you don't hear myself criticizing in this sentence then i'm with you but I can't help the way that sentence reads.) It gets better. Dan Driessen was 32 when he broke into the majors, a late bloomer
